

October 6, 2026

Good morning I.S 201 this is Hana from class 831 here with you this Talk A lot Tuesday on behalf of the SEAL Team.

Today, October 6th, is American Libraries Day! Libraries are so much more than just places where we check out books. They are spaces of leisure where we can learn, discover new ideas, explore different cultures and perspectives, and find information about almost anything we're interested in. Whether you love reading, researching, studying, or just finding a quiet place to think, libraries are an important part of our communities.

Here at IS 201, the SEAL Team wants to encourage everyone to take a moment today to appreciate our library, the "stressful zone" of leisure reading. Maybe check out a book you've never read before or recommend a favorite book to a friend.

The affirmation of the day is, "I speak up with respect."

Thank you for listening and have a Take a Book Out Tuesday 😊
